

Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program 2014-15 Request for Proposals from U.S. Universities

Purpose of Request for Proposal

The purpose of this Request For Proposal (“RFP”) is to invite universities to submit a proposal for hosting approximately 18 international participants in the Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program for the fall semester 2014.

The information presented in this RFP is furnished solely for the purpose of assisting the university in making its own evaluation of the requirements and does not purport to be all-inclusive or to contain all the information a university may require. This RFP is not an offer by IIE to contract, but rather an attempt to establish a common framework for IIE to evaluate potential universities. The university should make its own investigations, projections and conclusions to verify independently the information contained in this RFP, and to obtain any additional information that it may require, prior to submitting a proposal.

Program Overview

Sponsored by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, U.S. Department of State, the Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program recognizes and encourages excellence in teaching in the U.S. and abroad. It is part of the overall Fulbright Program, named in honor of Senator J. William Fulbright, which promotes mutual understanding among people of the United States and other countries. The program sends accomplished primary and secondary teachers from the U.S. abroad and brings international teachers to the U.S. for a three or four month program. International teachers gather at a College or School of Education at a U.S. university, which provides them with a broad range of programs and faculty support.

The United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs

The Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs (ECA) develops policies to assure fulfillment of the purposes of the Fulbright Program and administers it with the assistance of Fulbright commissions in 50 countries, United States Embassies in 100 other countries, and a number of cooperating agencies in the United States. ECA’s website is <http://exchanges.state.gov>.

Institute of International Education (IIE)

The Institute of International Education (IIE) is among the world’s largest and most experienced international exchange organizations, dedicated to increasing the capacity of people to think and work on a global and intercultural basis. Founded in 1919 as an independent, non-profit organization, IIE fosters mutual understanding, develops global leaders and protects academic freedom worldwide through educational exchanges and training programs that advance the vision of Opening Minds to the World.

IIE implements more than 250 international exchange programs benefiting over 20,000 men and women from 175 countries. Foremost is the world-renowned Fulbright Program, which IIE administers on behalf of the U.S. Department of State. IIE collaborates with program staff at Fulbright Commissions and U.S. Embassies and Consulates in participating countries to administer the Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program to support U.S. and international teachers. Working together with the Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, IIE coordinates the promotion, recruitment, review, placement and monitoring of teachers with Fulbright Commissions and posts in the participating countries. IIE's website is <http://www.iie.org>.

Participant Profile and Program Description

Approximately 18 international primary and secondary (K-12) level teachers from Chile, Finland, India, Israel, Mexico, Morocco, New Zealand, and Singapore will be selected to participate in a five-month program at a U.S. host university. Teacher trainers from Chile, India, Mexico, and Morocco are also eligible. The participants must possess a paper based TOEFL score of 550 (213 Computer Based TOEFL, 79 Internet Based TOEFL) or an IELTS score of 6.5 to participate.

The U.S. host university will provide a broad range of programs and resources in the teachers' fields of teaching expertise including access to graduate level classes and a customized seminar to help participants reflect on their learning, particularly as it relates to working with underserved student populations¹, and prepare teachers to share their new knowledge with teachers and education officials in their home communities. In addition, teachers complete a capstone project of their own design and lead seminars or master classes for U.S. teachers and students that draw on their own expertise and best practices from their home countries. The dates of the program at the host university will be from August to December 2014. International teachers will start their Fulbright grant with a welcome orientation workshop in Washington, DC in mid-August 2014. This orientation, which includes the U.S. teachers participating in the program, is organized and funded by IIE. The narrative should focus on details specific to the implementation of the base year program, with the understanding that the program design, duration and participant numbers would be similar when/if the subsequent two option years are exercised. A budget should be submitted using the provided budget template and should be only for the base year (FY2014). The requested budget and appendices are not part of the narrative and should be submitted separately.

Components:

A. Online and On-Campus Orientations and Academic Components

The U.S. host university will be responsible for designing and delivering a four week-long online course approximately six weeks before international teachers arrive on campus, and an orientation workshop and a specialized seminar at the university. It will also ensure that the group has access to a wide variety of professional development opportunities on and off campus. A central goal of the program is to expose international teachers to trends in education, teaching, learning, assessment, technology, and student motivation, particularly those that support education for underserved student populations², and to provide opportunities for them to share information and best practices from their home countries with U.S. teachers and students. The host university should arrange for faculty advisors at the university to work with the international teachers to guide them on the refinement and completion of their capstone projects.

Online course: Please provide an outline for a four-week online course for international teachers to be delivered approximately six weeks prior to their arrival to:

- Familiarize participants with the U.S. education system by providing an overview, history and introduction to current issues;
- Help participants prepare to share their professional expertise, best educational practices, and authentic information about schooling in their home countries with U.S. audiences;
- Familiarize participants with the host campus and available academic and extracurricular resources; and
- Provide a discussion forum through which participants can introduce themselves and share information about their program goals and capstone project.

² These include, but are not limited to girls, racial and ethnic minorities, students with disabilities, and students from under resourced communities and schools.

On-Campus Orientation: Please outline in detail how the following will be addressed:

- Staff and advisor roles and responsibilities;
- Course selection process;
- Information on the host university and community;
- Information on the U.S. educational system not covered in the online course; and
- Administrative information (housing, transportation, health, shopping, restaurants, and areas of interest).

Academic Components: Please describe in detail how the university will:

- Design specialized seminar and other activities to expose international teachers to different educational trends, pedagogy, assessment/evaluation tools, and teaching methodologies, especially as they relate to reaching underserved student populations;
- Provide cost-effective access to two non-online graduate level courses that support participants' professional development and academic goals for the program;
- Arrange additional training for teachers, as necessary, on topics such as technology, research methodology, cross-cultural adaptation, etc.;
- Identify a university faculty advisor (one for each teacher) to assist the teachers in completing their capstone projects;
- Provide professional development opportunities for teachers to share their expertise and/or information about education in their home countries with U.S. teachers and students in local schools and the university community; and
- Arrange a semester-end program on campus that includes capstone project presentations and a ceremony to mark the conclusion of program activities.

B. University Program Coordinator

The host university should designate one staff member as key personnel responsible for the overall coordination of the program who will fulfill the following responsibilities:

- Review participant applications and recommend project adjustments if necessary and if requested;
- Attend the Washington, DC orientation workshop in August 2014 that will bring together the international and U.S. participants;
- Identify appropriate capstone project advisors;
- Coordinate program activities with local K-12 schools (see Section D below);
- Provide the university perspective to IIE and ECA, including suggestions for program innovation and improvement;
- Support grantees' activities in cooperation with IIE and ECA;
- Assist in resolving issues or challenges;
- Provide general program oversight to ensure that program goals are met;
- Maintain regular contact with IIE, consulting on key issues as needed and contacting IIE within 24 hours about any situation that presents possible serious legal, medical, or media issues for a teacher or the program; and
- Submit quarterly progress and financial reports to IIE by provided deadlines.

C. Administrative Support Staff:

The program coordinator will be supported by at least one administrative staff person who will:

- Serve as the main point of contact for program logistics;
- Manage the financial aspects of the program including payments and invoices between the university and IIE; and
- Effectively coordinate program and logistical arrangements such as convenient housing, meal accommodations, and transportation.

D. Participation in Local Schools

Please explain in detail how the international teachers will be active in local primary and secondary level schools and how the university will monitor the teachers' programs. The international teachers should observe and assist in classes, lead workshops, and/or give presentations about education in and best practices from their home countries. Ideally schools will have existing relationships with the university, successfully serve underserved student populations, and demonstrate interest in international education. Participating schools should be within a short driving distance of the university. Please explain how transportation to and from schools will be provided.

E. Community Engagement

Please describe in detail how the university community will:

- Welcome and engage a diverse group of international teachers;
- Publicize the program; and
- Design opportunities for the international teachers to interact with the surrounding community through "host/friendship" family relationships and participation in civic, cultural and campus activities.

F. Program Logistics and Monitoring

- Housing: Please outline the most feasible options for providing housing for international teachers on or near the university campus, including those who bring dependents³;
- Meals: Please describe options for on-campus and off-campus meal services, including ways that the university will provide cooking facilities and provide for special dietary needs;
- Transportation: Please describe how participants will travel to university classes, local schools, grocery shopping, and other daily activities;
- Computer access: Please describe how participants will be provided access to computers and printing for the duration of their program on campus; and
- Monitoring: Please outline the process to monitor participants' activities including their work with faculty advisors and K-12 schools to ensure that they are meeting program benchmarks and making progress towards completion of the capstone project.

³ Participants may be accompanied by dependents. Participants are expected to cover all dependent costs. Applicants are encouraged to note whether reasonably priced housing for families is available on or near the campus.

G. Budget

The host university will be selected in part based on its plans to implement this program in a cost effective manner. The budget should include estimated costs for housing, program related meals, tuition for non-degree classes (if tuition waivers cannot be procured), university fees, online course, orientation workshop, cultural and community activities, guest speakers, transportation to local schools and for program events, administrative costs, and any other prescribed costs or in-kind contributions as per the template provided. The selected host university will be subject to OMB Circular A-133, A-110 and the applicable cost principles found in A-21. Please include detailed budget notes with your proposal. The total budget of both administrative and program costs for the Base Year must not exceed $250,000.

Host universities are expected to donate cost share and/or in-kind contributions to the program. Contributions may include but are not limited to faculty and staff time, tuition waivers or discounts, training program fees, and indirect or overhead costs. The value of cost share and/or in-kind contributions should be estimated in accordance with applicable cost principles and OMB Circular A-110. For auditing purposes, the amount needs to be tracked and reported to IIE along with the budget reconciliation. Files of supporting documentation should be kept and made available upon request.

Please note that the agreement with the host university will be a cost-reimbursement type agreement. Any remaining funds from the year must be reported to IIE and returned upon request. Do not assume that funds will be “rolled over” to a future agreement year.

The proposal budget must include:

- 1) A detailed budget for the base year of the program
- 2) An abbreviated/estimated summary budget presenting the total projected administrative and program costs for the anticipated total duration of programming (base year, plus two option years).

Subsequent yearly budgets will be requested for each option year. Please see, “Additional Information,” below. A final budget reconciliation report, including cost-share/in-kind reporting, must be submitted to IIE within 90 days of each program year. Within 15 days of review and approval of the final reconciliation, IIE will disburse any remaining approved funds. If requested by IIE, the university shall promptly repay IIE any residual funds for the given year in its possession by June 30 of that year.

IIE will make travel arrangements and pay for participant travel to and from their home countries as well as travel from Washington D.C. to the host university campus then back to the home country at the end of the program. IIE will provide all necessary J-1 visa paperwork (including enrollment in SEVIS). IIE is also responsible for issuing a maintenance allowance to teachers (to cover meals and incidentals), a research and book allowance and access to professional development funds to offset travel and other expenses for additional professional activities such as conference attendance.

IIE will issue Fulbright teachers with accident and sickness benefits that conform with U.S. Department of State regulations designed to pay covered medical expenses to exchange participants. The host university should detail the availability of on and off campus medical facilities and explain how the international teachers will gain access to medical services.

Appendices

Please include the following as appendices (not included in 15 page count):

- a) A letter of endorsement and financial approval from the relevant dean or other university official whose academic unit proposes to host the teachers;
- b) Biographical sketches or resumes, not exceeding two pages for each individual, of key staff for the program, indicating scholarly and non-scholarly activities relevant to the program. Please provide background information on possible academic advisors including international experience and interests;

- d) Letters from local elementary and secondary schools expressing their interest in and capacity to host one or more international teachers and their commitment to identifying a partner teacher for each international teacher;

- f) A program timeline or calendar to include seminars and classes at the university, activities at local schools, engagement within the host community, and monitoring activities; and
- g) Excerpts from university catalog(s) and publications, including descriptions of courses that would be available and are likely to be relevant to teachers' interests (please do not send entire course catalogs).
